These problems are recommended for additional practice and will not be graded. There is no need to hand them in. Solutions to these and all other problems in the textbook are available on the password-protected section of the course website and will also be published in Canvas once the Canvas site becomes available only to registered students in the second week of the semester.

I suggest that you try the problems below in the week immediately after these topics are covered in class.

For exam preparation, a good strategy is to DO (not merely read over) the problems from the old exams, the relevant homework assignments, and the lecture examples.

The numbers of the weeks below refer to the numbers of the content modules in our Canvas site. Please see the Schedule of Assignments file for due dates of the homework assignments and dates of the exams.
