

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	ix
Preface	xv
Susan J. Pharr and Robert D. Putnam
Foreword	xxiii
Samuel P. Huntington
CHAPTER ONE
Introduction: What's Troubling the Trilateral Democracies?	3
Robert D. Putnam, Susan J. Pharr, and Russell J. Dalton
PART I. Declining Performance of Democratic Institutions
CHAPTER TWO
The Public Trust	31
Russell Hardin
CHAPTER THREE
Confidence in Public Institutions: Faith, Culture, or Performance?	52
Kenneth Newton and Pippa Norris
CHAPTER FOUR
Distrust of Government: Explaining American Exceptionalism	74
Anthony King
PART II. Sources of the Problem: Declining Capacity
CHAPTER FIVE
Interdependence and Democratic Legitimation	101
Fritz W. Scharpf
CHAPTER SIX
Confidence, Trust, International Relations, and Lessons from Smaller Democracies	121
Peter J. Katzenstein
CHAPTER SEVEN
The Economics of Civic Trust	149
Alberto Alesina and Romain Wacziarg

PART III. Sources of the Problem: Erosion of Fidelity

CHAPTER EIGHT

- Officials' Misconduct and Public Distrust: Japan and the
Trilateral Democracies 173
Susan J. Pharr

CHAPTER NINE

- Social Capital, Beliefs in Government, and Political Corruption 202
Donatella della Porta

PART IV. Sources of the Problem: Changes in Information and Criteria of Evaluation

CHAPTER TEN

- The Impact of Television on Civic Malaise 231
Pippa Norris

CHAPTER ELEVEN

- Value Change and Democracy 252
Russell J. Dalton

CHAPTER TWELVE

- Mad Cows and Social Activists: Contentious Politics in the
Trilateral Democracies 270
Sidney Tarrow

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

- Political Mistrust and Party Dealignment in Japan 291
Hideo Ōtake

- Afterword* 311
Ralf Dahrendorf

- Appendix: The Major Cross-National Opinion Surveys* 315
Russell J. Dalton

- Bibliography* 319

- Contributors* 347

- Index* 349

Tables

TABLE 1.1	Confidence in Politicians in 13 Trilateral Countries	15
TABLE 1.2	Confidence in Parliament in 14 Trilateral Countries	20
TABLE 3.1	Confidence in Public and Nonprofit/Private Institutions in the Trilateral Democracies	55
TABLE 3.2	Confidence in Parliament in the Trilateral Democracies	56
TABLE 3.3	Confidence in Public and Private Institutions in the Trilateral Democracies	57
TABLE 3.4	Individual-Level Correlations between Social Trust, Voluntary Activism, and Institutional Confidence	63
TABLE 3.5	The Effects of Social Background and Political Attitudes on Institutional Confidence at the Individual Level	64
TABLE 3.6	National-Level Correlations between Social Trust, Voluntary Activism, and Institutional Confidence	67
TABLE 4.1	Presidential Approval Ratings, 1953-99	90
TABLE 6.1	Different Levels of Economic Openness of the Trilateral Democracies	135
TABLE 6.2	Rates of Change in the Economic Openness of the Trilateral Democracies	141
TABLE 6.3	Government Performance in the Trilateral Democracies	144
TABLE 7.1	Deterioration of Macroeconomic Performance	158
TABLE 7.2	Revenue and Spending as a Percentage of GDP	159
TABLE 7.3	Composition of Expenditures as a Percentage of GDP	162
TABLE 8.1	Political Trust and Orientation in Seven Trilateral Countries, 1976	174
TABLE 8.2	Dissatisfaction with Politics in Japan, 1978-96	175

TABLE 8.3	LDP Strength, Economic Conditions, and Dissatisfaction with Politics in Japan, 1978–96	180
TABLE 8.4	Interest Groups in Japan, the United States, and Korea, 1960–91	183
TABLE 8.5	Growth of Interest Groups in Japan by Type, 1960–91	184
TABLE 8.6	Social Capital and Satisfaction with Politics in Japan, Controlling for Age, Sex, and Education, 1996	186
TABLE 8.7	The Effect of Corruption Reports, LDP Strength, and Changes in Economic Conditions on Political Dissatisfaction in Japan, 1978–96	198
TABLE 9.1	Confidence in Institutions in Italy, France, and Germany, 1981 and 1990	215
TABLE 9.2	Political Behavior in Italy, France, and Germany	217
TABLE 10.1	Hours of Television Watched per Day	235
TABLE 10.2	Social Trust and Television Viewing: Percentage Who Believe “Most People Can Be Trusted”	236
TABLE 10.3	Level of Voluntary Activism and Television Viewing	237
TABLE 10.4	Percentage of TV Users Who Are Active Members of Voluntary Organizations	238
TABLE 10.5	Support for Political Regime and Television Viewing	239
TABLE 10.6	Institutional Confidence and Television Viewing	239
TABLE 10.7	Political Interest and Discussion and Television Viewing	241
TABLE 10.8	Regression Model of Indicators of Civic Malaise	242
TABLE 10.9	Political Interest and Media Attention in Britain and America	245
TABLE 10.10	Political Trust and Media Attention in Britain and America	246
TABLE 10.11	Political Efficacy and Media Attention in Britain and America	247
TABLE 10.12	Social Trust and Media Attention in America	247
TABLE 10.13	Political Knowledge and Media Attention in Britain and the United States	248
TABLE 11.1	Postmaterial Values and Confidence in Political and Social Institutions	258

TABLE 11.2	Postmaterial Values and Support for Democracy	262
TABLE 11.3	Postmaterial Values and Support for Government Spending by Policy Sector	266
TABLE 12.1	Trends in Grassroots Activities in 12 Countries, 1974-90	281

Figures

FIGURE 1.1	Explaining Confidence in Government and Political Institutions: A Model	23
FIGURE 3.1	Confidence in the Police	68
FIGURE 3.2	Confidence in the Civil Service	69
FIGURE 3.3	Confidence in Parliament	70
FIGURE 4.1	Declining Trust in Government	88
FIGURE 5.1	Negotiations in Single-Issue Space	112
FIGURE 5.2	Welfare Losses in Negotiated Agreements	113
FIGURE 7.1	Distributions of Voter Preferences over a Single Policy Issue	152
FIGURE 7.2	Bias in the Transmission of Voter Preferences into Political Choice	153
FIGURE 7.3	Partially Convergent Party Platforms	154
FIGURE 8.1	Media Reports on Corruption in Japan, 1948-96	196
FIGURE 8.2	Corruption and Dissatisfaction in Japan, 1978-96	197
FIGURE 9.1	The Relationships of Social Capital, Trust in Government, and Government Performance with Social Capital as the Independent Variable	203
FIGURE 9.2	The Relationships of Social Capital, Trust in Government, and Government Performance with Government Performance as the Independent Variable	205
FIGURE 9.3	Corruption Evaluations of Germany, France, and Italy Compared to Other Trilateral Countries	207
FIGURE 9.4	Dissatisfaction with the Functioning of Democracy	208
FIGURE 9.5	Changes in Corruption Evaluations for Germany, France, Italy, and Other Selected Trilateral Countries, 1980-97	211
FIGURE 9.6	Official Statistics on Corruption in Italy, 1984-95	212

FIGURE 9.7	Dissatisfaction with Democracy and Cases of Corruption Reported in the Italian Press, 1976-92	214
FIGURE 9.8	Vicious Circle: Maladministration → Corruption → Maladministration	226
FIGURE 11.1	The Relationship between Postmaterialism and Institutional Confidence	260
FIGURE 11.2	Support for Democracy by Postmaterial Values	263
FIGURE 12.1	Typology of Transformations of Goal Orientations and Action Repertoires of Social Movement Organizations with Illustrative Forms	278